THE CAUSE OF LAKE TRAGEDY

Coroner's Jury Stated That Company Violated Laws at Fox Lake

BOAT WAS OVERLOADED

Jury Recommends that Boat Owners Obey the Law in Regard to Life Preservers and Showing of Lights

The jury inquiring into the fatality at Fox Lake on May 8, when seven were drowned, gave their verdict in which they blame the company operating the boat, stated that the laws governing lake navigation were violated and also that the laws regarding the life preservers and boat lights was not enforced. They also recommended that in the future laws be enforced.

The jury decided that the boat was overloaded, loaded in violation of all law and the Bissell Laundry Co., owners of the boat were censured. They stated in their verdict that the boat was loaded to two or three times its capacity. Fox Lake and one or two others in this county are government lakes and the United States laws govern all boats on them.

According to the jury all seven of the victims were drowned. Had life preservers been on the boat, as is provided for and required by law the jury claimed that the accident would never have happened.

With these recommendations it is thought that the authorities at Fox Lake as well as in the other lakes of the county will take notice of the recommendations and see that the laws are enforced from this time on.

Coroner Taylor stated that this was the worst accident that Lake County has seen for many years and that in the future he believed, as did the jury inquiring into the case, that the government laws should be strictly enforced.

News readers will remember that there were no lights on the boat and also that there were seven in the launch, which should have carried only two or three. There were no life guards on board and when the boat started to sink the seven people, six men and a girl, were caught like rats in a trap.

Without doubt the verdict of the jury will have a great effect on the lake navigation in this county in the future.

CURVED BOARD IS MEANS OF CURING TUBERCULOSIS OF SPINE

A second wonderful cure of tuberculosis of the spine by means of being strapped to a curved board for a long time has just been brought to light in Waukegan. Little James Dee, the 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dee, of 613 Washington street, is the second child to be cured of the disease, the first being little Ollie Mantyla who has been a patient at the tent colony so long.

The Dee child was found to be suffering of tuberculosis of the spine over a year ago. Dr. Webster, a former osteopath in the city, was consulted and he suggested the plan of strapping the youngster to the curved board. This was done and daily for a time the numb and shriveled limbs of the child were massaged.

Gradually an improvement began to be noted and a short time ago, after having been strapped on the board for over a year, the child was released and allowed to make his way about. He grew stronger daily and now is able to play about the yard the same as other children. The cure is believed to be a permanent one and if everything goes well he will grow stronger and more healthy every day.

Trick Didn't Work Out.

A Castleford, Yorkshire, England, claimant to an old-age pension produced a prayer book the other day, with his name entered on it as having been born in 1839. The ink used, however, was composed of a dye not invented till 1867, and instead of a pension the claimant got 14 days for attempted fraud.

CARLSON TAKES OWN LIFE

Man of Mystery Cuts His Throat From Ear to Ear, Dying Instantly.

Phillip Carlson, apparently about twenty-four years of age, a farm hand working at the Drury place on Sheridan Road near Beach, gnashed his throat from ear to ear, with a razor Saturday morning, causing death instantly.

The young man's reason for this rash act is not known at this time. He was found by Mr. Drury and undertakers in Waukegan were notified at once. When the men from the city arrived Carlson had been dead for about a half hour.

Mr. Drury is at a loss to know what caused this young man to do away with himself. According to all reports Carlson worked in the field Friday and was in good spirits. It is said, however, that he had been in ill health for some little time.

It seems that there is something of a mystery about the man. When he came to this county, which was about five weeks ago, he went under the name of Phil Carlson. Later several post cards were found in his possession addressed to Alder Carlson.

It is thought that he lives in Muskegon, Mich., and Chief of Police Tyrrell is working on the case now and expects to have some information when the inquest was held.

It seems that there was another farm hand sleeping with Carlson in the same room at the time of the tragedy. The man had stated that he had something on his mind but Drury told him to keep his troubles to himself which he did.

It is thought that complete facts will be brought out at the inquest.

BODY FOUND IN WOODS

Two Boys Make Gasly Find Early Tuesday Afternoon in Woods.

With a rope around his neck and his body dangling from the branch of a tree in McCormick's woods near Lake Forest an unidentified Italian, about 46 years old, was found by two boys from Highwood who were walking through the woods Tuesday at 2 p. m.

Lake Forest officers were called and the body was removed to Wenham's morgue. The Italian apparently committed suicide nearly a week ago. There is apparently no clue to his identity.

The dead man was fairly well dressed and had a little money in his pocket. There were no papers by which his identity might be established.

Residents of Lake Forest who have called at the morgue do not remember having seen him about town. The body will be held at the morgue pending an investigation.

The police of this county are making every effort to discover the identity of this man but up to this time all efforts have been fruitless. The Lake Forest police telephoned Waukegan asking that an Italian who is well acquainted about this county be sent down. Accordingly a man was dispatched but he did not know the dead man.

The latest reports from Lake Forest are to the effect that the remains have not been identified.

The following interesting information is taken from a report made by Walter D. Scott, British agent in Tringganu. The hand loom is found in every house and the women weave beautiful silk and cotton sarongs. Throughout the peninsula the men are famed as the best boat builders, and they are clever and efficient workers in iron, brass and nickel.

FINDS DEAD BODY NEAR GURNEE

Corpse Found Hidden in a Swamp Two Miles North of the Village

FARMER MAKES DISCOVERY

Remains Were Laid at Rest in Potter's Field at Dictation of Coroner J. D. Taylor

A decomposed corpse of a man was found hidden in a swamp, on a farm two miles north of Gurnee at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon by Orin Metcalf, a former Waukegan milk dealer and his 15-year-old son.

The corpse had decayed beyond all possibility of recognition.

Dr. Taylor, coroner of Lake county, was summoned to the village at five o'clock. After a hurried investigation of the surrounding territory an inquest was held. The corpse was buried in the potters' field, in Warren cemetery by the light of the stars Friday night. Undertaker Schriber had charge of the burial.

No letters that would assist the police in identifying the remains were found in the clothing. The body had decomposed to such an extent that Coroner Taylor was unable to find any marks of violence.

That the man fell into the swamp and died of exposure is the belief of Coroner Taylor.

"The body had been in the swampy for at least six weeks," said a resident of Gurnee who viewed the corpse previous to the burial.

Although efforts have been made, no one has been able to identify the body of the man and it is probable that no one will ever know who he was.

It is the prevailing belief that the man had laid down to take a nap and that the water rose over his body and drowned him although he might have died of heart disease. The man is described as being about thirty years old, weight about 160 pounds, height about five feet ten inches. Some think he was a tramp, as his clothes were of a cheap material. His coat was lying beside his body which would indicate that he had not attempted to commit suicide.

AVIATOR FLIES FROM CHICAGO TO MILWAUKEE

Carrying mail and freight, Farnum T. Fish the youngest aviator of note in the world Saturday passed over Waukegan at 12:09 enroute from Chicago to Milwaukee where he was the star attraction at an aviation meet which formally opened at 1:11 when he attained the goal of his flight, landing on the Milwaukee field amid a great demonstration by Milwaukee people.

He left Chicago at 11:06, rising from the Aero club of Illinois field before a huge throng.

Fish, who is but 16 years old, is a Los Angeles boy holding the world's cross-water record, having made it at Los Angeles recently.

Fish demonstrated the feasibility of being able to carry freight and mail via airship for he carried a bolt of silk and some mail consigned to the Milwaukee aviators' club.

SUDDEN DEATH OF J. A. ROSE

Illinois Secretary of State Expires at Home After Illness of Only One Day

HAD HELD PLACE 14 YEARS

Governor Must Appoint His Successor and There are Many Aspirants in the Field Already

Secretary of State James A. Rose died at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at his home in Springfield. He had been ill but one day and the suddenness of his death came as a great shock to the residents of Springfield, which city has been his home for the last fifteen years.

Last night Secretary Rose was taken ill and suffered two internal hemorrhages during the night. This morning he complained of a suffocating sensation, but the attending physician did not realize that death was so near. Mr. Rose told his wife that, unless he gain relief, he could not live.

Mr. Rose suffered but little until about an hour before his death, when he was seized with choking sensation which continued until the end. He was conscious almost to the last.

The dead official had just finished a successful campaign for renomination as the candidate for secretary of state, and he had worked incident to the campaign is probably partly responsible for his death. He was first elected secretary of state in 1896 and was re-elected in 1900, 1904 and 1908. He was one of the best known figures in public life in Illinois and his popularity is best shown by the large majorities by which he was elected secretary of state time after time, holding the office longer than any man before him.

The death of Mr. Rose will work a big change in the political situation in the state. It will be necessary to fill out the unexpired term and for the Republican state committee to fill the vacancy on the state ticket.

It is regarded as probable that Chief Clerk Harrington Clannan will be named by the Governor to serve the balance of Secretary Rose's term.

The dead official was born at Golconda, Ill., Oct. 13, 1850. He received his education in the common schools of the state and at the Illinois Normal university at Normal, Ill. He began teaching in the public schools before reaching his majority and was elected county superintendent of schools of Pope county in 1873. In 1881 he was elected state's attorney.

During the administration of Governor Fifer Mr. Rose served as trustee of the Pontiac reformatory and as commissioner of the Chester penitentiary. He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. James P. Smith of Paducah, Ky., one son, Charles R. of Springfield, Ill., a half-brother, William D. Rose of Springfield, and two grandchildren, Elizabeth and Josephine McCoy.

ROCKEFELLER BANK ROBBERS ARRESTED IN MILWAUKEE

The daring "yeegmen" who successfully broke into the Rockefeller bank on May 8, but who were unable to reach the compartment containing the $2,000 in money which the bank had on hand at that time, due largely to the fact that the breaking of two bottles of ammonia that had been placed in the bank for just such an emergency caused such overpowering fumes that they could not work to any advantage, are believed to have been captured in Milwaukee and are now awaiting trial.

RURAL CARRIER CHANGES

Postmaster Must Make Recommendation of All Candidates

A new method governing appointments of rural carriers is announced by the postoffice department. Heretofore rural carriers have been appointed with out recommendations from postmasters the ruling being that the candidates having the highest examination rating should receive the appointments regardless of moral or other qualifications. The result has been in some cases to admit into the service rural carriers who were not fitted for the service. Belvidere had an example of the workings of this rule a few years ago when the candidate highest on the list was given a place on the strength of his examination rating and subsequently disgraced the service by improper personal conduct. The new rule gives postmasters an opportunity of making recommendations from a list of three eligibles, the top three as is now the rule in city carrier and clerk appointments.

The rule was changed on the executive order of President Taft who also warns rural carriers from participation in politics in the following language.

Persons employed as rural carriers, while retaining the right to vote as they please and to express their opinions privately on all political subjects, shall take no active part in political management or in political campaign. Any rural carrier taking such part shall be removed from the service or otherwise disciplined, recommendation as to the penalty to be imposed in each case to be made by the civil service commission.

TO DEDICATE ZION ORGAN

Tuesday Evening, June 18, Large Pipe Organ Will be Dedicated

Voliva's new $45,000 organ which is being erected in Shiloh tabernacle, Zion City, is to be dedicated on the evening of June 18.

This announcement was made by Overseer Voliva Sunday and he stated also that he had engaged one of the most noted organists in the world to come to Zion to give the opening program on the huge musical instrument, said to be the largest pipe organ in this part of the world. In fact it is said probably few larger instruments have ever been built.

To give an idea of the size of the organ, it is interesting to know that thirteen miles of wire was used in putting the organ together. It came in parts and men have been engaged for many weeks in assembling it. The roof of the tabernacle had to be reconstructed to take of it, and in fact, the whole north side of the huge building had to be remodeled in order to accommodate the instrument which will be one of the wonders of the north shore.

No doubt the opening program with the new instrument will prove something out of the ordinary and crowds will throng the building for a general invitation is being issued by Voliva asking people to take advantage of the privilege of hearing it played.

TRIES TO STAB AN OFFICIAL

Because he Was Refused a Job, Mike Frank Sought to Stab Official

AGILITY SAVED HIS LIFE

Man Pursued Him 200 Feet Then Went to Police Station and Gave Himself Up to Them

After having made a murderous attack upon C. F. Blackmer, assistant superintendent of the American Steel & Wire Company's plant in Waukegan as the latter was crossing the field between the plant and the Chicago & Milwaukee Electric tracks, shortly before 6 o'clock Monday night, Mike Frank (alias Mike Sluga) appeared at the police station and gave himself up. He was given a preliminary hearing in police courts before Police Magistrate Walter Taylor Tuesday morning and was bound over to the grand jury in bonds of $1,500 on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder. Frank was unable to furnish bonds and will be obliged to remain in the county jail until the grand jury convenes next fall.

Frank admitted on the stand that he had tried to stab Mr. Blackmer because the latter would not give him a job. He said he did not want to kill him—he simply wanted to "hurt him a little."

Mr. Blackmer said he knew Frank to be a trouble-maker wherever he was employed and that for this reason he refused to give him a position in the plant when he asked for it. Frank had asked him for a position in the plant three times and had been refused each time. It was after the third refusal that he made his attack. He also had asked George Seila superintendent of the plant for a job but evidently he considered that the latter was too large to tackle.

Mr. Blackmer was walking toward the car line about 5:45 o'clock when he was stopped midway in the field by Frank.

"Have you got a job for me?" he demanded.

Mr. Blackmer replied in the negative and at the same time stepped back a pace because of Frank's threatening attitude. He was not a moment too soon for the next instant Frank whipped the weapon out of his pocket and made a large striking out with all his strength. The backward step saved Mr. Blackmer for the keen bladed instrument slashed his coat on the left side and slipped under his arm. The blow of the man's fist left a black and blue mark on his chest.

The force of the blow almost knocked Mr. Blackmer down but realizing that being unarmed he was not match for his assailant he took to his heels with Frank in close pursuit for 200 feet. As he reached the electric tracks Mr. Blackmer reached a brick pile and grabbing up two of these stood his ground, waiting for Frank to come within striking distance. The tables were turned and Frank slunk down a side street.

The wire mill official got on board a street car and made his way to the police station where he reported the matter. He had been there but a few minutes when Frank entered the station and said he was there to give himself up.

I was mad because he would not give me a job—I had no money and I could not take care of my family—I have asked several times for a job and I intended to hit him with the steel if he did not give it to me—I didn't want to kill him; only to hurt him a little—I threw the piece of steel in a pool of water as I ran—this was the story told on the stand by Frank in reply to questions propounded by State's Attorney Dady. Frank said he was drinking all the afternoon and was drunk when he made the attack. Assistant Chief of Police Thos. Tyrrell, who was in the police station when Frank went in, says the fellow had been drinking, but that he was not intoxicated. The police made an effort to get the instrument which Frank used in making the attack.

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 50th birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledges, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensational rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district, Harnish buys two tons of flour which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his dog he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization and amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest five million in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York, and confronting his disloyal partners with a revolver, he threatens to kill them if his money is not returned. They are cowed, return their stealings and Harnish goes back to San Francisco, where he meets his fate in Deeds Mason, a pretty stenographer.

CHAPTER XI.

Daylight was in the thick of his spectacular and intensely bitter fight with the Coastwise Steam Navigation Company, and the Hawaiian, Nicaraguan, and Pacific-Mexican Steamship Company. He stirred up a bigger muss than he had anticipated, and even he was astounded at the wide ramifications of the struggle and at the unexpected and incongruous interests that were drawn into it. Every newspaper in San Francisco turned upon him. It was true, one or two of them had first intimated that they were open to subsidization, but Daylight's judgment was that the situation did not warrant such expenditure. Up to this time the press had been amusingly tolerant and good-naturedly sensational about him, but now he was to learn what virulent scurrilousness an antagonized press was capable of. Every episode of his life was resurrected to serve as foundations for malicious fabrications. Daylight was frankly amazed at the new interpretation put upon all that he had accomplished and the deeds he had done. From an Alaskan hero he was metamorphosed into an Alaskan bully, liar, desperado, and all-around "bad man." The whole affair sank to the deeper depths of rancor and savagery. The poor woman who had killed herself was dragged out of her grave and paraded on thousands of reams of paper as a martyr and a victim to Daylight's ferocious brutality. He was like a big bear ridding a beehive, and regardless of the stings, he obstinately persisted in pawing for the honey. He gritted his teeth and struck back. Beginning with a raid on two steamship companies, it developed into a pitched battle with a city, state and continental coast line. Allied with him, on a splendid salary, with princely pickings thrown in, was a lawyer, Larry Hegan, a young Irishman with a reputation to make, and whose peculiar genius had been unrecognized until Daylight had picked up with him. It was Hegan who guided Daylight through the intricacies of modern politics, labor organization, and commercial and corporation law. It was Hegan, prolific of resource and suggestion, who opened Daylight's eyes to undreamed-of possibilities. In twentieth-century warfare, and it was Daylight, rejecting, accepting, and elaborating, who planned the campaigns and prosecuted them. With the Pacific coast, from Puget Sound to Panama, buzzing and humming, and with San Francisco furiously about his ears, the two big steamship companies had all the appearance of warring. It looked as if Burning Daylight was being beaten slowly by his knees. And then he struck—at the steamship companies at San Francisco, at the whole Pacific coast.

It was not much of a blow at first. A Christian Endeavor convention was being held in San Francisco, a row was started by Express Drivers' Union No. 327 over the handling of a small heap of baggage at Ferry Building. A few heads were broken, a score of arrests made, and the baggage was delivered. No one would have guessed that behind this petty wrangle was the free Irish hand of Hegan, made potent by the Klondike gold of Burning Daylight. It was an insignificant affair at best—or so it seemed. But the Teamsters' Union took up the quarrel, backed by the whole Water Front Federation. Step by step, the strike became involved. A refusal of cooks and waiters to serve sea teamsters or teamsters' employers brought out the cooks and waiters. The butchers and meat cutters refused to handle meat destined for unfair restaurants. The combined Employers' Associations put up a solid front, and found facing them the 40,000 organized laborers of San Francisco. The restaurant bakers and the bakery wagon drivers struck, followed by the milkers, milk drivers and chicken pickers. The building trades asserted its position in unambiguous terms, and all San Francisco was in turmoil.

But still, it was only San Francisco. Hegan's intrigues were masterly, and Daylight's campaign steadily developed. The powerful fighting organization known as the Pacific Slope Seamen's Union refused to work vessels the cargoes of which were to be handled by sea longshoremen and freight handlers. The union presented its ultimatum, and then called a strike. This had been Daylight's objective all the time. Every incoming coastwise vessel was boarded by the union officials and its crew sent ashore. And with the seamen went the firemen, the engineers and the sea cooks and waiters. Daily the number of idle steamers increased. It was impossible to get sea crews for the men of the Seamen's Union were fighters trained in the hard school of the sea, and when they went out it meant blood and death to scabs. This phase of the strike spread up and down the entire Pacific coast, until all the ports were filled with idle ships, and sea transportation was at a standstill. The days and weeks dragged out, and the strike held. The Coastwise Steam Navigation Company and the Hawaiian, Nicaraguan, and Pacific-Mexican Steamship Company were tied up completely. The expenses of combating the strike were tremendous, and they were earning nothing, while daily the situation went from bad to worse, until "peace at any price" became the cry. And still there was no peace, until Daylight and his allies played out their hand, raked in the winnings, and allowed a goodly portion of a continent to resume business.

Daylight's coming to civilization had not improved him. True, he wore better clothes, had learned slightly better manners, and spoke better English. But he had hardened, and at the expense of his old-time, whole-souled geniality. Even his human affiliations were descending. Playing a lone hand, contemptuous of most of the men with whom he played, lacking in sympathy or understanding of them, and certainly independent of them, he found little in common with those to be encountered, any at the Alta-Pacific. In point of fact, when the battle with the steamship companies was at its height and his raid was inflicting incalculable damage on all business interests, he had been asked to resign from the Alta-Pacific. The idea had been rather to his liking, and he had found new quarters in clubs like the Riverside, organized and practically maintained by the city bosses.

One week-end, feeling heavy and depressed and tired of the city and its ways, he obeyed the impulse of a whim that was later to play an important part in his life. The desire to get out of the city for a whiff of country air and for a change of scene was the cause. Yet, to himself, he made the excuse of going to Glen Ellen for the purpose of inspecting a brickyard which Holdsworth had sold him. He spent the night in the little country hotel, and on Sunday morning, astride a saddle horse, rode out of the village. The brickyard was close at hand on the flat beside the Sonoma Creek.

Resolving to have his fun first, and to look over the brickyard afterward, he rode up the hill, prospecting for a way across country to get to the knolls. He left the country road at the first gate he came to and entered through a hayfield. The grain was waist-high on either side the wagon road, and he sniffed the warm aroma of it with delighted nostrils. At the base of the knolls he encountered a tumble-down stake-and-ride fence.

He tethered the horse and wandered on foot among the knolls. Their tops were crowned with century-old spruce trees, and their sides clothed with oaks and madroños and native bolly. But to the perfect redwoods belonged the small but deep canyon that threaded its way among the knolls. Here he found no passage out for his horse, and leading the animal, he forced his way up the hillside. On the crest he came through an amazing thicket of velvet-trunked young madroños, and emerged on an open hillside that led down into a tiny valley. The sunshine was at first dazzling in its brightness, and he paused and rested, for he was panting from the exertion. Not of old had he known shortness of breath such as this, and muscles that so easily tired at a stiff climb. A tiny stream ran down the valley through a tiny meadow that was carpeted knee-high with grass and blue and white nemophila. Crossing the stream, Daylight followed a faint cattle trail over a low, rocky hill and through a wine-wooded forest of manzanita, and emerged upon another tiny valley, down which filtered another spring-fed, meadow-bordered streamlet.

"It sure beats country places and bungalows at Menlo Park," he commented aloud; "and if ever I get the hankering for country life, it's mo for this every time." An old wood-road led him to a clearing, where a dozen acres of grapes grew on wine-red soil. A cow-path, more treacherous and thickets, and he dropped down a hillside to the southeast exposure. Here, poised above a big forested canyon, and looking out upon Sonoma Valley, was a small farmhouse. With its barn and outhouses it snuggled into a nook in the hillside, which protected it from the west and north. It was the oration from this hillside, he judged, that had formed the little level stretch of vegetable garden. The soil was fat and black, and there was water in plenty for he saw several faucets running wide open. Forgotten was the brickyard. Nobody was at home, but Daylight dismounted and ranged the vegetable garden, eating strawberries and green peas, inspecting the old adobe barn and rusty plow and harrow, and rolling and smoking cigarettes while he watched the antics of several broods of young chicks and the mother hens.

"Nothing could satisfy his holiday spirit, now that the ascent of Sonoma Mountain. And here on the crest, three hours afterward, he emerged, tired and sweaty, garments torn and face and hands scratched, but with sparkling eyes and an unwonted zestfulness of expression. He felt the illicit pleasure of a schoolboy playing truant. The big gaming table of San Francisco seemed very far away. But there was more than illicit pleasure in his mood. It was as though he were going through a sort of cleansing bath. No room here for all the sordidness, meanness and viciousness that filled the dirty pool of city existence. He was loath to depart, and it was not for an hour that he was able to tear himself away and take the descent of the mountain. Working out a new route just for the fun of it, late afternoon was upon him when he arrived back at the wooded knolls.

Daylight cast about for a trail, and found one leading down the side opposite to his ascent. Circling the base of the knoll, he picked up with his horse and rode on to the farm-house. Smoke was rising from the chimney, and he was quickly in conversation with a nervous, slender young man, who, he learned, was only a tenant on the ranch. How large was it? A matter of one hundred and eighty acres, though it seemed much larger. This was because it was so irregularly shaped. Yes, it included the clay-pit and all the knolls, and its boundary that ran along the big canyon was over a mile long. Oh, yes, he and his wife managed to scratch a living without working too hard. They didn't have to pay much rent. Hillard, the owner, depended on the income from the clay-pit. Hillard was well off and had big ranches and vineyards down on the flat of the valley. The brickyard paid ten cents a cubic yard for the clay. As for the rest of the ranch, the land was good in patches, where it was cleared, like the vegetable garden and the vineyard, but the rest of it was too much up-and-down. "You're not a farmer," Daylight said.

The young man laughed and shook his head. "No, I'm a telegraph operator. But the wife and I decided to take a two-years' vacation, and . . . here we are. But the time's about up. I'm going back into the office this fall after I get the grapes off."

As Daylight listened, there came to him a sudden envy of this young fellow living right in the midst of all this which Daylight had traveled through the last few hours.

"What in thunder are you going back to the telegraph office for?" he demanded.

The young man smiled with a certain wistfulness. "Because we can't get ahead here. . . . (he hesitated an instant), . . . and because there are added expenses coming. The rent, small as it is, counts; and besides, I'm not strong enough to effectively farm the place. If I owned it, or if I were a real hunky like you, I'd ask nothing better. Nor would the wife." Again the wistful smile hovered on his face. "You see, we're country born, and after bucking with cities for a few years we kind of feel we like the country best. We've planned to get ahead, though, and then some day we'll buy a patch of land and stay with it."

SCENES IN JERICO

Writer Tells of Wonders in the Holy Land.

Declares Arabs, Riding on Their Camels in Quiet of Dawn, Passed Like Phantoms—Visited Grave of Lazarus.

Jerusalem.—We had come down from Jerusalem the previous morning with a correspondent, a carriage ride of four hours, and had stopped for luncheon at Jericho, or, more correctly speaking, at Rilla, a little to the east of the site of the ancient city. What memories of brilliant events in Biblical history cling about this spot! Jericho, the city of palm trees; the scene of Joshua's victories; the place where the last days of Elijah were spent, and whence he went forth with Elisha to cross the waters of the Jordan, to be taken up to heaven in a chariot of fire; the spot where the two blind men were healed; the place where our Lord paid a visit to the house of Ynchens. Here, too, were the long celebrated and beautiful groves and gardens given to Cleopatra by Mark Antony. Jericho now consists of a large Russian church, a house for Russian pilgrims, two hotels and the mud huts of Bedouin Arabs.

As we descended the 700 feet below Jerusalem the heat increased until we arrived in the tropical plain of Jericho under a blinding sun. First, we visited the pool of Elisha, the waters of which he had healed; then, tramped through the ruins of the Jericho of the Israelites, where we saw part of the city walls around which Joshua and his army marched seven times. After its capitulation Joshua pronounced a curse on the city, which was fulfilled. Very recently excavations have been made here by the Germans and the Austrians.

The only sound we heard as we rolled along the sandy soil past clusters of thorn bushes was the tinkling of the sleighbells around the horses' necks. Straight ahead, at intervals, we could discern a dark moving mass on the road, and as we approached a party of Arabs would step aside, all wrapped closely in their cloaks, with staffs in their hands. At another time the dark moving mass would prove to be a caravan of camels moving noiselessly along with their heavy burdens. Daylight came slowly, for the morning was misty. The outlines of the hills were slowly being defined by the rising sun with a deep purple over their western slopes. Then did I realize why artists so often paint them shrouded in that color; and why the Psalmist would utter the hope and the longing of nations, "I will lift up mine eyes to the everlasting hills: whence my hope cometh."

Arabs, riding on their camels along the mountain roads in the all-providing quiet of the dawn, with the gorgeous purple hills and the deep blue sky for a background, passed like phantoms, like dream-pictures one used to imagine when stories were told in childhood.

Since that day the whole Scripture narrative has been wonderfully vivid; the abiding peace and beauty of the hills have a sense of sheltering presence over man and beast.

About half way back to Jerusalem we stopped to rest the horses at a khan where once stood the Inn of Good Samaritan fame. Nearer to Jerusalem we alighted at Bethany and went down into the grave of Lazarus, carrying lighted candles. The ruins of the house of Simon, the tanner, are near by; as is a part of a wall of the house of Martha and Mary. Passing strange it seems that Mohammedans should have the custody of these places, as well as of a few in Jerusalem itself.

Yes, "Go to Jericho," but be sure to come back again.

CANADA'S PROSPERITY.

The New York Times of March 23, 1912, in an article dealing with Canada's progress, says:

"At the present moment eight shiploads of European immigrants are afloat for Canada, while there are signs that the outward movement which is customary with us during labor troubles will be marked this year. There is no such startling record of our loss to Canada. Our citizens quietly slip over the border in groups or trainloads, but their going is not advertised."

"There is no mystery why Canada is the 'good thing' the United States used to be. It is because Canada is following in its neighbor's footsteps that it is repeating the fortunate experience which its neighbor is enjoying, even while deliberately turning its back on the teachings of the past. A fortnight ago the Dominion budget speech reported the unprecedented surplus of $39,000,000, and on Thursday the Government passed through the Committee on Supply credits of $38,000,000 for railways and canals. With this assistance the railways themselves are both enabled and compelled to increase their facilities. Accordingly we find a single road allowing ten millions for work of its own. Naturally the Canadian newspapers contain announcements calling for fifty thousand men for construction work. This influx is apart from those Americans who go with money in their pockets obtained by cashing in their high-priced American lands."

"A St. Paul dispatch says that within a fortnight two thousand carloads of farm animals and machinery have passed toward Canada, the property of men who expect to pay for their farms with the first crop."

JUST HIS LUCK.

"I never saw such a chronic kicker as Touch is."
"What's his latest grievance?"
"He found a five-dollar bill this morning and is grumbling because a man to whom he owed $4 saw him pick it up."

WOMEN SHOULD BE PROTECTED

Against So Many Surgical Operations. How Mrs. Bethune and Mrs. Moore Escaped.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything."

"I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl."

—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.
Murrayville, Ill.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a very bad case of female trouble and it made me a well woman. My health was all broken down, the doctors said I must have an operation, and I was ready to go to the hospital, but I dreaded it so that I began taking your Compound. I got along so well that I gave up the doctors and was saved from the operation."

Dancer Breaks His Nose.

Wife Wins, as Usual.
"Of course, one can never win an argument with one's wife," remarked a broker the other day. "Even if one is perfectly right in his contention, the fates, or the postoffice department or something else will turn up to make it appear that the man is wrong. For instance, a few days ago my wife remarked that a letter in a plain envelope dropped in a letter box would be delivered even if it had no stamp. Of course I know better, and told her so, but she was obstinate. Just to prove my contention when I was at the office the next day I drew a picture of a goose on a sheet of paper. Underneath the likeness I wrote: 'Dear Madam: If you pay two cents to get this you are a goose.' I put the sheet in a plain envelope and addressed it to my wife. The next morning the doorman rang furiously while I was still in bed. I waited for the wife or the maid to respond, but both had gone out. Finally I went to the door myself. There was a fool letter carrier with that crazy letter, and I had to dig down and pay the two cents postage due. If I had given the letter to my wife she would have been still more firmly convinced that she was right."

E-M-F "30" Touring $1100 Flander "20" $800
Amid the noise of much automobile advertising, we will speak quietly. We have something to say. We want men who think to listen.
This is our story: We are building E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" automobiles—building 50,000 of them this year—and selling them to men of moderate means and also of large means, but all alike in one particular. The investigator, critic, make comparisons and prove the value of what they buy. They think.
Years of honest dealing and skillful manufacture have given the name Studebaker a great prestige. It has become a principle. Into every E-M-F "30" or Flanders "20" automobile built goes the reputation and integrity of that name and what it stands for.

ATTORNEYS CLASH

PROSECUTOR FREDERICKS AND COUNSEL FOR DARROW WAR OVER DETECTIVE.

LATTER CITED FOR CONTEMPT

Alleged to Have Given Newspaper Interview in Which He Discussed Evidence He Helped Secure Against Defendant.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 29.—After a bitter controversy between District Attorney Fredericks and counsel for the defense in the Darrow bribery trial here Monday, Judge Hutton issued a citation for contempt against Robert J. Foster, chief detective for the National Erectors' association, based on allegations made in affidavits signed by Earl Rogers, Horace Appel, Harry Dehm and H. G. Giesler, attorneys for Darrow.

Foster is to appear and testify, at which time other witnesses will be heard in regard to an interview published in a morning paper and reported in an afternoon paper in a modified form, in which Foster discussed evidence which it was alleged he helped secure against Darrow by means of the dictagraph, Foster being under subpoena as a witness at the time.

Subsequent to the issuance of the citation, Judge Hutton gave his formal ruling concerning the admissibility of testimony connected with the bribery of jurors and witnesses. His ruling gives a sweeping victory to the prosecution, as he decided that testimony and evidence relating to any bribery connected with the J. B. McNamara case is admissible in this trial. This gives the state all it has asked for.

Under the ruling Captain Fredericks will introduce a vast amount of corroborative material which the defense had hoped to keep out. Rogers claims the effect of the decision is not so sweeping and is not final, but the state is entirely satisfied with the court's language.

The court denied the motion to strike out an answer made by witness George N. Lockwood to the effect that Bert Franklin had told him that one juror was already bribed.

The affidavits against Foster were presented at the beginning of the court session. Captain Fredericks immediately asked that the jury be sent out while the matter was under discussion. Rogers contended that a deliberate attempt had been made through the Foster interview to reach the jury, and demanded that the matter of contempt be discussed in the jury's presence.

"But, Mr. Rogers," said Judge Hutton, "this effort, if there was one, failed, for the juror assured me that no juror has seen the printed interview. Why make that effort successfully now by discussing it before the jury?"

Captain Fredericks asked to be relieved of the prosecution in the contempt proceedings against Foster, and the court appointed George Beebe, deputy attorney general, to act for the state.

George N. Lockwood resumed the stand and, under the examination of Captain Fredericks, continued the story of the offer of a bribe to him by Bert Franklin, his report of the matter to District Attorney Fredericks, further negotiations with Franklin under the direction of Captain Fredericks, and in the hearing of detectives from the district attorney's office, and the final passage of the bribe, followed by the arrest of Franklin himself and C. E. White, whom Franklin had chosen as the stakeholder for the $3,500 which was to be paid following Lockwood's promised vote for McNamara's acquittal.

Darrow was directly connected with the scene of the arrest in Lockwood's testimony.

"As we walked along Main street, after the $500 bill had been given to me," said Lockwood, "a block and a half from Third and Los Angeles streets, where the money was passed, I saw a man start across the street toward us. Franklin said: 'Wait a minute; I want to see that man.' Just as they met, Detective Brown stepped up to them, brushed this man aside and arrested Franklin."

"Do you know who that man was?" asked Captain Fredericks.

"He was Mr. Darrow, the defendant," answered Lockwood.

Cashier H. T. Jeffery of the First National bank of Washington has arrived here under subpoena as a witness for the state. It is understood that he will be used to testify concerning the funds for the McNamara defense, collected in the east.

GIANT BRIBE PLOT

ATTORNEY GENERAL AT LOS ANGELES OUTLINES CASE AGAINST CLARENCE DARROW.

ALTERNATE JUROR IS CHOSEN

Completion of Jury Brings Out Statement by Prosecutor of Conspiracy to Corrupt McNamara Witnesses as Well as Talsamen.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 26.—Following the selection on Friday of A. M. Blakesley, a hotel keeper, as the thirteenth or alternate juror to try Clarence Darrow on the charge of bribing a juror in the McNamara case, John D. Fredericks, the district attorney, outlined the charges that the prosecution would attempt to prove.

He declared the state expected to prove that among the detectives employed by Darrow, who was chief counsel for the McNamara case, were Bert Franklin, Bert Hammerstrom and John R. Harrington; that the defense knew of Lockwood's name being in the jury box; that Franklin went to Lockwood, whom he knew, and offered him a certain sum of money if, when he was called as a juror and succeeded in passing the examination, he would vote not guilty.

"We will show that this was done at the instance and request and under directions of this defendant, Clarence Darrow," said the district attorney.

WARSHIPS GO SOUTH

BIG UNITED STATES DREADNAUGHTS RUSHING TO CUBAN WATERS.

More Battleships to Follow—Five Thousand Troops Are Ready to Be Moved to Island—Army Transport in Commission.

New York, May 28.—Five dreadnaughts of the United States navy, prepared for the greatest naval demonstration since the Spanish-American war, are rushing to Cuba under full steam.

Three other battleships and a cruiser are being loaded with marines and munitions of war at Hampton roads with feverish haste, while still another battleship is hurrying across the gulf of Mexico to join the fleet at Key West. At the Norfolk navy yard are assembled hundreds of marines waiting for transports, several of which are being made ready for a quick embarkation.

To add to the excitement in naval circles, a well founded rumor gained circulation that the United States is rushing the nucleus of her sea fighting power to southern waters not only to suppress the revolution in Cuba, but also to put a final quietus on the situation in Mexico.

Rear Admiral Osterhaus, commanding the Atlantic fleet, arrived off Tompkinsville on board his flagship, the armored cruiser Washington, but before anchor could be dropped he received orders by wireless from the navy department at Washington to proceed at once to Cuba without waiting for a complement of marines and supplies, which was the vessel's mission to this port.

An hour later, the battleships Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio steamed up the narrow strait at full speed, rushed marines and munitions on board and turned south again a few hours later.

The battleships, Georgia, New Jersey and Rhode Island and the cruiser Montgomery took supplies and marines on board at Hampton Roads. The Georgia was reported by wireless as proceeding to Guantanamo. The battleship Nebraska reported that she was making first time across the Gulf of Mexico. The supply ship, Culebra is at Hampton Roads taking on supplies from the south.

The 6,000 troops which have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to embark at once can be moved as soon as the transports are ready. The orders to place the army transports at Newport News in commission, naval men said, indicated that something more than a naval demonstration to overawe the rebellious negroes in Cuba was contemplated in Washington.

The battleships which passed here a few hours before proceeding south were at Provincetown when they received orders to take marines and war supplies aboard and rendezvous at Key West.

The sudden arrival and flight of the Washington caused a sensation here. The roar of her chains through the harbor piers and hardly drifted ashore against the wind when her prow began to turn seaward. A moment later she was plowing down the channel.

The Delaware and the Minnesota were the next to arrive. The Delaware kept on up the harbor, but the Minnesota anchored in the channel with steam up. At Tompkinsville the naval tug Pawnee and two others were waiting loaded down with marines. As they put off toward the Minnesota, the Mississippi, the Missouri and the Ohio were seen steaming in. They dropped anchor a hundred yards apart in the channel, in single column. The Pawnee ran alongside the Minnesota and transhipped her marines.

The men carried their full field equipment. The tug made several trips back to Tompkinsville until the entire detachment of marines had been placed aboard the battleships.

As soon as the last marine was aboard a red flag was hoisted on each battleship, a signal that explosives were being taken aboard. Lighters drew alongside the vessels and began to send small arm cartridges and ammunition for the big guns aboard. This work was completed in an incredibly brief time. In a few minutes after the last lighter drew away the warships were standing out to sea, watched by thousands along the Staten Island and South Brooklyn shores.

Simplest Way of All.
The following story told Saturday Evening Post says is told of Col. George W. Goethals, who at the time it took place was an instructor in engineering at West Point.

One day, in a refutation, he gave out this question to a class of cadets. "The post flagpole, sixty feet high, has fallen down. You are ordered by your commanding officer to put it up again. You have under your command a sergeant and ten privates of the engineer corps. How would you get the pole back into place?"

Each cadet, after long consideration and much flurrying over the derrick, blocks, tackle and so on, evolved a different method.

"No," said Goethals, "you are all wrong. You would simply say: 'Sergeant, put up that flagpole!'"

His Face Entirely Filled With Pimples

And Blackheads. Was Ashamed Used Resinol, Skin Clear

A Jersey City man, Thomas Bruco, 1074 Brunswick St., writes: "Mar. 29, 1912.—About four months ago a pimple broke out on my forehead, which pained me very much. I began scratching it and within two weeks my face was entirely filled with pimples and blackheads. They were not only disgusting, but also painful. I was ashamed to walk on the streets and soon became discouraged. I tried many remedies such as salves, cold cream, etc., but all were a failure."

"I read of the Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment in the papers, and soon sent for samples which I used. They proved to be excellent and after using two cakes of Resinol Soap and a jar of Resinol Ointment, it removed every pimple and blackhead in sight. This treatment lasted about three weeks, and now my skin is clear and healthy. I gave some Resinol Ointment to a friend and it cured him of eczema (or barber's itch). My family use Resinol Soap for the toilet and shampoo; it stops dandruff and falling hair, recommends Resinol Soap and Ointment for all skin troubles."

REMINDEES OF WAR IN MEMORIAL DAY

ISAAC R. SHERWOOD

JAMES R. TANNER

GEN. A. W. GREELY

SEN. CHARLES DICK

SEN. KNUTE NELSON

1863. I was lying in Fairfax Seminary Hospital in the suburbs of Alexandria, Va. I was part of the wreckage of the second battle of Bull Run. In the ward in which I lay and to the right of me was a comrade seriously wounded. He, too, was a son of Ireland. He was the life of the ward, and he smiled and joked and laughed, confident of his recovery.

"One day the surgeon notified the visiting priest that he had better inform Pat that his time was short. I was lying so that I had a good view of his face when the priest broke the dread news to him. He choked in his throat in an effort to master himself, and then asked the good father to wheel his bed around so he could look out of the window. It seemed a strange request, but without hesitation the priest obeyed. And then, as Pat turned his gaze upon the world without his window, we became aware of the reason of his request—he wished to see once more before he died the flag floating at the head of the staff outside."

"Darling," he breathed, fervently, "there you are 'at the top! Place God, ye still have onchallenged from Maine to Mexico!"

"Then followed in a rush of words the things he had dreamed of it before he had ever seen it on its native soil. He had prayed that he and his loved ones might come under its beneficent folds to enjoy the perfect liberty it promised. Now it was in peril and he was dying for it, unable even to raise his weakened hand and salute it. He bade the glorious old banner good-bye, and, turning to the priest, said:

"Father, you'll write to her 'nd break it gently as you kin. Sore will be her heart-ut when she knows that Pat will come back no more to her, 'nd th' boys. Tell her I charge her wit 'me dyin' breath' to rear th' boys so that when manhood comes to them, and the flag should fly 'round them, they will give their loves avon unto death, as their father gives his love this day! 'N now, father, to me soul's salvation."

"In the gray dawn of the following morning a commotion near my bed awoke me. Opening my eyes I saw them lift his lifeless form and carry it out of the ward."

"Did you ever hear of Tim Regan's flag?" continued the old veteran, who paid as his price of duty to his country both legs. "No? Well, Tim Regan was a son of the Emerald Isle who had gone to war with the 9th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry. He, with many other Union soldiers, lay in Libby prison as that Fourth of July drew near. They chafed in spirit at the thought of passing the Fourth without even a sight of the flag. Tim conceived the idea of making one. He had a new white woolen shirt and the others blue ones. They pooled their slender amount of cash and persuaded an amiable guard to purchase for them some red and white woolen goods, on the pretext that they wanted to make them up into shirts. Out of this material they fashioned a flag, crude in construction, but it represented Old Glory."

"They gnawed as well as they could the door of the loft of the prison and the probable height to which the patrolling guard might raise his vision. Then, the night of the 3rd, they clambered up among the rafters and stretched their crude flag in the apex of the loft. The next day they gathered in a crotle in the center of the chamber and sang patriotic songs throughout the day. The guards were a little curious as to the cause of the unusual proceedings, but failed to discover the banner above them. That night they took it down, cut it into strips and divided it among themselves. Each thereafter wore a strip of that flag around his body next his skin, and as each was paroled he bore out with him his fragment of the banner."

"Regan had taken the precaution to ascertain the home address of each man. After the war he corresponded with them or their surviving relatives, and finally—it was a work of years' duration—had every bit of the flag back again. Again he sewed it together. Again he stood at salute before it. Now he has gone to join his comrades in the great beyond, but the flag he made is securely guarded from dust and decay in a glass case

TAFT SAYS WILL NOT INTERVENE

Marines Sent to Cuba to Protect Americans.

SENDS MESSAGE TO GOMEZ

Notwithstanding Note of Assurance Preparations Looking to Occupation of Island Are Actively Going Forward.

Washington, May 28.—Preparations by the administration for intervention in Cuba and an indefinite occupation of the island continue with as much vigor as during the last few days, despite the note of assurance of non-intervention sent by President Taft to President Gomez.

A striking evidence of the purpose of the United States to take action was shown Monday when Acting Secretary of the Navy Beekman Winthrop ordered four colliers and supply ships of the navy to lead and proceed to join the second squadron of the Atlantic fleet now steaming, with all haste to Key West.

Taft Replies to Gomez. Sunday President Taft received through the state department a protest from President Gomez against the assembling of a large force of warships in Cuban waters or any action by the United States which would lead the world to understand that the American government was going to intervene. In reply to that message the president sent to President Gomez the following:

"I am sincerely gratified to learn of your government's energetic measures to put down the disturbance and to know that you are confident of being successful. As was fully explained to the Cuban charge d'affaires here, this government's motive in sending ships to Key West, just as in sending the Prairie to Guantanamo naval station, was merely to be able to act promptly in case it should unfortunately become necessary to protect American life and property by rendering moral support or assistance to the Cuban government. As was made quite clear at the time, these messages of precaution were entirely disassociated from any question of intervention."

Prepare for Occupation. Despite the note to President Gomez, officials of the administration here assert that the United States will have troops in Cuba within a week. They base their opinion on dispatches coming to the government hourly from the island republic. The last dispatch to be received came to the state department from Arthur Beaupre, United States minister of Cuba. Of that dispatch the state department makes known the following:

"It is reported that in the districts of Matanzas, Guantanamo and Songo a few unimportant clashes between the rebels and government troops have occurred. Estenoz, the rebel leader, has demanded of the managers of various enterprises in the Guantanamo district contributions and has threatened to burn their plants unless payments are made. Large bands of negroes are reported to have been roaming along the line of the Guantanamo and Western railroad from Holguin to Sagua and pillaging at will. In Sagua over 200 citizens have volunteered for the defense of the city. Citizens of El Caney have done likewise. A small guard has been secured for the American colony at Bayamo in the disturbed district. Traffic continues on the Guantanamo and Western railway though constantly harassed from Santo to Matanzas by armed bands."

Army and Navy Active. The assertions that the United States will not intervene are embarrassed daily by the unusual activity in both arms of the military service. The navy continues to assemble marines and supplies for the fleet dispatched to Key West; the army to issue instructions to post commanders and the army transport service.

Instructions to the post commanders are that the troops of their garrisons may be called upon at any time for duty in Cuba and that they must hold all men in readiness to send. Organizations which are not recruited to full authorized strength are being filled from other regiments. All leaves of absence and furloughs have been stopped and the men now enjoying them have been ordered back to their organizations.

The same is true in the navy. Officers and men on leave have been ordered by telegraph to report at once for duty. A number of these men will report to naval stations in northern cities and be sent by rail to join their respective ships.

The war department is making preparations for sending 15,000 instead of 5,000 men to Cuba in case intervention is ordered. The sending of such a large force to Cuba will not force the army hands to reduce the strength of the Mexican border guard.

Hold Many As Assassins. Rome, May 28.—Wholesale arrests are being made throughout Italy as the result of the discovery of a plot to assassinate King Victor Emmanuel of Italy. The discovery of the plot followed admissions made by Antonio d'Alles, the young anarchist who tried to shoot King Victor Emmanuel several years ago. A number of alleged conspirators already have been taken into custody at Milan, Naples, Rome and Bologna. At least three self-confessed anarchists are said to have been arrested here.

The Soldier Dead

Hallowed by a supreme sanctity are the graves of the soldier dead. So it was in the days of the ancient races, and so it will be when the last war has been fought and the battle-flags are forever furled. Those who have offered themselves as a sacrifice for their flag and their country, who have endured the hardships of camp and march, or who have fallen in the red carnage of battle, have a peculiar claim upon the gratitude and affection of succeeding generations.

In no land has this claim been more truly recognized than in our own; and no people was ever before so generous in its tributes to its fallen heroes, or to its treatment of those who came home from its wars. When returning springtime brings the flowers, in all their eloquent beauty and symbolism, we celebrate a Memorial day which is characteristic of the spirit of the republic.

It is now an even half-century since the beginning of the stupendous conflict for the preservation of the Union, and the anniversary is bringing home with renewed emphasis the sacrifices and the significance of those dark days. Happily, it brings also a greater appreciation of the complete reunion of the severed sections, and of the peace and prosperity which bless the land.

Before General Logan wrote the order, in 1863, which was the beginning of the popular and official dedication of May 30 to the patriot dead, a tender impulse of womanhood in the stricken south had begun the beautiful custom of strewing with blossoms the passionless mounds above those who had fallen in the passion of battle.

The usage and the associations of years have consecrated the day above our other holidays. Upon it there gleams a glory which lightens the past, and which shows us that the blood and the tears were not shed in vain, and that the fruition of the sacrifice justified the seed which was sown.

The Heroes. Bring laurel and myrtle oak and bay, And wreaths of roses, white and gold, And drape their graves on this holy day With the flag they loved in the days of old; For the red is red of the blood they gave, The white is the smoke of the belching gun, And the blue is the blue of the sky they gave To gain the stars in the crowns they won.

Queer Paradox. "They say a laboring man cannot choose a job but must take what he can get." "Well, isn't that so?" "Yes, and it's odd, because as a matter of fact he can always take his pick."

The Other Part. "He always kept an eye on the stage." "Did he get a part to fit him?" "He did. He got the book."

Remembrance.

The stray bits of conversation cannot help overhearing in public places sometimes are deliciously funny.

A conductor said, in tones of great severity, to a passenger who was making considerable disturbance on the car:

"Here, here, sir! Remember you are on a public vehicle and you must behave as such."

About the House.

In case of a sudden leak, when it is difficult to get a plumber quickly, turn off the water and mix some common yellow soap and whiting with just enough water to make a thick paste. It will be found to do temporarily as well as solder, provided you turn the water on again rather slowly, as a sudden rush might force it out.

Har Prayer Answered.

The vicar of Brixton, Isle of Wight, said, in church the other day, that a woman, on his advice, knelt at the altar in his church recently and prayed that her two sons in Canada, from whom she had not heard for a long time, might write to her. Soon afterward her sons sent her a cablegram, and a letter followed, stating that they had suddenly felt impelled to send a message home.

Influence of College Men.

As educated men filter through the community, reforms are obtained that twenty years ago seemed millennial. The separation of local from state sources of revenue, the separation of local from national elections, the treatment of a franchise as valuable property, the discriminating between ordinary industry and natural monopoly, the practice of scientific charity and penology, the concentration of responsibility in government—these and a score of other good things which once seemed as far above popular comprehension as four-dimensional space, have come to pass, thanks chiefly to the radiations from the classrooms.—Century Magazine.
